17th Faculty-Student Conference on Statistical Sciences

Shangri-la Hotel, EDSA

The Faculty-Student Conference on Statistical Sciences serves as a medium for the exchange of ideas between budding young researchers and seasoned academics in the field of statistical sciences, and as a venue for statistics students and faculty to disseminate their researches. It is an opportunity to explore different applications and areas of statistics, and experience limitless developments and discoveries in statistical sciences.

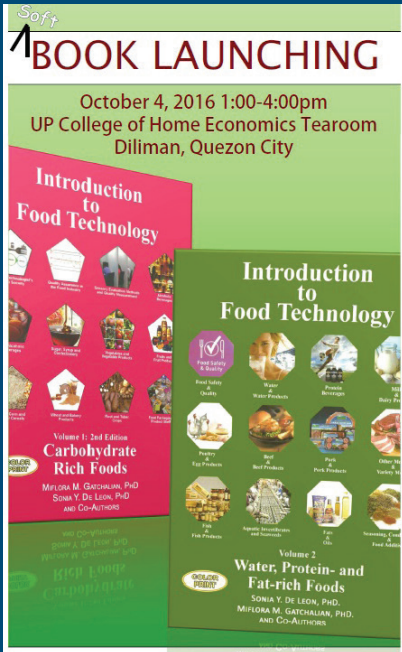

This year’s theme “Sustainable Development: Making Statistics Count” will particularly highlight the importance of statistics in the everyday life of Filipinos and how available data resources can contribute in finding processes and solutions that will bring everyone to a better future.

The conference is a joint effort of the UPD School of Statistics, the UPLB Institute of Statistics and the Philippines Statistical Research and Training Institute. It is open to all students (graduate or undergraduate) and faculty members nationwide.

For details on how to participate, please refer to the official website of the conference: <http://fsc-upd.webs.com>.

Beyond My Body

A solo exhibition of new works by Ambie Abaña

Corredor, UP CFA Gallery, Bartlett Hall
 Opening reception November 8, 4:00 p.m.

Visual artist and UP College of Fine Arts (CFA) faculty member Ambie Abaña re-mounts her solo exhibition, Beyond My Body, at the Corredor Gallery. Featuring large-scale prints on translucent textile and works on engraved Tanguile wood, the exhibition reflects on the temporal nature of the body and ponders on the essence of eternal selfhood lying within the deeper self: the spirit. In this exhibition, Abaña wields material binaries to represent dual states of being: images in engraved wood present the body in its various stages of deterioration, while images produced from layers of translucent tulle exemplify the ethereal qualities of the spirit.

The exhibit is open to the public. Abaña will hold an artist talk on November 10, 2 p.m. at the UP CFA Gallery.

For more information, please call Gilda Sychingok at 920.9910 (telefax) or 0943-4546204.
